The ſudden and ſtrange conduct of the NEW-YORKERS, in their politicks, brings to our minds a Frenchman's deſcription of a Highland regiment in battle, Ces Diables de Harlequins, ils courent partout: And the following piece is inſerted in this paper, as a ſpecimen of York wit, which ſeems to go hand in hand with York virtue. The aſſertions are plump enough in conſcience; but as ſkeleton-proof would be diſguſting, it is with propriety paſſed over. When we conſider the " JOIN or DIE" virtue of that city, and its profeſſions full as patriotic (ſee upon the word!) and its declarations full as ſtrong, as thoſe of the good people of Boſton, with great ſeriouſneſs, we vow to God, we ſtand aſtoniſhed at this attack: However, as it is the conſtant cuſtom of backneyed jades to become bawds, we ſhall not be ſurprized, if every clandeſtine art it made uſe of, firſt to ſully the characters, and then to debauch the minds of ALL the Siſter-Colonies: And as we are, ſomehow or other, entitled to the precious gift of ſecond-ſight, we will venture to affirm, that a rank attempt is now making on the body of the FAIR QUAKER.

From the NEW-YORK GAZETTE.

To the great FOLK, the good FOLK, the high FOLK, the mighty FOLK, the wiſe FOLK, the wonderful FOLK of the great TOWN, the good TOWN, the high TOWN, the mighty TOWN, the wiſe TOWN, the wonderful TOWN of BOSTON.

Right worſhipful, and much beloved, we greet you well.

OUR ſteady virtue and unrivalled patriotiſm have been founded by the trump of fame from pole to pole, and the inhabitants of the frozen zone have been warmed by the rays of your heroiſm: Nations yet unborn ſhall recount your deeds with rapture, and humbly admire that virtue they cannot equal—But excellence ſuch as yours cannot expect to eſcape the blaſts of cenſure. There always have been and ſtill are men of ſuch envious, incredulous and obſtinate tempers, as will dare to contradict, and vainly attempt to ſtem the torrent of popular Opinion; and form their judgment of Men's Merit, not from their DECLARATIONS, but their CONDUCT.

But, has not the Vox Populi always been accounted infallible? And do not thoſe Pſeudo-Patriots, who ſpeak Evil of your Dignities, allow the truth of this propoſition, "That the multitude is the ſafeſt judge of wrong and right," by taking ITS deciſion in the moſt momentous concerns? And hath not ſuch deciſion been invariably formed on PROFESSIONS rather than ACTIONS?—Nor is this manner of judging confined to politics; 'tis extended to Religion alſo: And you, Gentlemen, whoſe experience in theſe matters is ſuperior, can teſtify, that a viſage contracted to the model of a Spaniſh Mule's—the ſolemn pace of a diſpaſſionate Reſonante; and above all, a voice modulated and attuned to the deep drone of a Wild-Iriſh bagpipe, are never-failing ſources of a Saintly Character, however heatheniſh MORALITY may be deſpiſed or neglected.

The common practice of mankind in this caſe is ſo notorious, that whoever is not convinced, muſt ſhut his eyes againſt conviction: And I aſſure you, Gentlemen, that even in this city, in the full face of the ſun, a number of people (de Grege) are with much toil and drudgery following at the heels—liſtening (arrectis Auribus) to the decrees, and ſquabbling for the characters of two or three Inſignificants, merely becauſe they have ſaid again and again, THAT THEY ARE PATRIOTS.

Since then the majority of mankind in all ages have formed their opinions more on Profeſſions than Actions: Since the ſureſt teſt of Propriety is the conſent and example of the Majority of Mankind—the Concluſion is full in your favour.

Having thus demoliſhed the fundamental principle of your Opponents, ſuffer me, gentlemen, to elucidate the Wiſdom and Policy of your conduct, in making Reſolutions and Profeſſions without any regard to Practice. I ſhall not dwell on the common arguments advanced in your favour, by your honeſt and zealous, but weak friends; who argue, that it is a mark of the higheſt wiſdom, not to be ſhifting our purſuits from object to object, but to keep ſome end and purpoſe ſteadily in view, that we may form a conſiſtency of action; and defy the world to prove that Self-intereſt has not ever been your main object; and that you have not always talked loudeſt of religion as well as Patriotiſm, and placed the whole of your merit in ſimple Profeſſions. Nor can I doubt of your continuing to do ſo, whilſt your form of government, both civil and eccleſiaſtical, retains its preſent purity.

But, as this argument may perhaps be too general, I ſhall, for the ſake of our brethren in this city and Philadelphia, point out the ſuperior excellence of your mode of oppoſition; that they may hereafter copy your example, and eſcape their former errors.

The Non-Importation agreement, as adhered to by the merchants of the two laſt mentioned places, could at beſt only affect the manufacturers that vended their goods thither; and the only hope of advantage was founded on an expectation of their complaints. Such a ceſſure of trade was at the ſame time attended with a forfeiture of their own intereſt, and in ſome meaſure that of their reſpective colonies. But how infinitely more ſelf-denying and politic was your conduct? Your ſpirited Reſolutions and warm Profeſſions of inflexible Oppoſition, which crouded every page of your Public-papers (and what has the World to do with a man's private concerns?) had not their influence confined to the narrow limits of a few dirty manufacturing towns and obſcure villages, but ſounded in the ears of the whole kingdom, and thundered with a vengeance to the Miniſtry themſelves; "That their ſchemes could have no effect on a people who would ſpend their hearts-blood in defence of their liberties,"—but at the ſame time your commercial intereſts were promoted, and your trade ran on, in the ſame, equal, and uninterrupted channel.

But your ſuperior wiſdom and management, and the infatuation of the other colonies, will appear more ſtrongly, when we conſider alſo, that the people of GREAT-BRITAIN in general, were panting for liberty—groaning under Miniſterial Oppreſſions, and packing up all the complaints they could light on (witneſs the Lord Mayor, and his worthy aſſociates) to effect the Diſgrace and Removal of EVIL-COUNSELLORS; tho' had the ſpirit of their petitioning Remonſtrances, or remonſtrating Petition (call it as you pleaſe) been attended to, the world is apt to believe, that their WORSHIPFULNESSES would never have got ſo near the royal preſence as to preſent it.——It is the true point of policy, and an infallible ſign of prudence, to trace the main

RUN away, about the Middle of May laſt, a NEGRO MAN, named SIRRAH, of the Guiney Country, about five Feet, ſeven or eight Inches high, of a pretty black Complexion, ſpeaks tolerable good Engliſh, not very thick, ſuppoſed to be between thirty and forty Years old.

A NEGRO WOMAN, named MOLLY, alſo of the Guiney Country, ſuppoſed to be near forty Years of Age, of a middle Size, and ſpeaks Engliſh.

Alſo NEGRO MAN, named GLASGOW, about Twenty-five Years of Age, five Feet ten Inches high, a well-made Fellow, has a Place on his Head like a Kind of a Spot without Hair, and a large Scar on his Belly, both which are apprehended to have proceeded from a Burn, ſpeaks Engliſh but indifferently, with a ſqueaking Voice in common, is of the Ebo Country.

The two laſt did lived in Chriſt-Church Pariſh before I bought them, therefore the Woman may probably be gone there, but I imagine that the Fellows are ſomewhere in St. Thomas's Pariſh, as they lived with me there till I left it, or about Charles-Town, as they uſed to go to Market, and have got ſeveral Acquaintances there.

Whoever takes up all, or any of the above Slaves, and delivers them to the Warden of the Work-Houſe, in Charles-Town; or to me at Furmania, near the High-Hills of Santee, in Craven County, ſhall receive TEN POUNDS Currency Reward for each, and reaſonable Charges.

| HOUSHOLD, | 3 | 10 | 0 | HOUSHOLD, | 5 | 6 | 0 |

Of which all Bakers of BREAD are required to take due Notice.

BENJAMIN SIMONS, Com. Gen.

...ning of action in a people, and apply it to our own purposes. In this view, gentlemen, you have unloaded indeed. You know that generosity and good nature, were the distinguishing lineaments of ENGLISHMEN—that they were easily drawn by tenderness, but obstinate and untractable by violence: You therefore wisely chose not to offend and make them your enemies, by discarding commerce with them; but brib'd them to our interest by secret trade; and at the same time by severe Denunciations against the Ministry, and repeated DECLARATIONS "That you lov'd Liberty better than meat and drink—would die for liberty, and retire into the howling Wilderness for liberty;" you closed in with the current dispositions of the people of Great Britain—engaged them by your Kindness, and a Fellow-feeling to espouse our cause—and consequently, EFFECTED A REPEAL.

Happy people! Who have made public good and private interest harmonize: Who, by dint of much writing, long Speaking, and loud Huzzaaaaaaing, have borne the laurel from your rival neighbours, and found the universal Approbation of your patriotism only exceeded——by your own Applause of it.—

Some novices among us seem to make your "Declaring the letter sent you by our committee, a counterfeit, and tearing it, and scattering it to the winds," a matter of surprise—but surely, their own ignorance and stupidity, must be a cause of much greater wonder: For who in his senses could imagine, that gentlemen, who knew your Practices so well as they did (or might have done) whose signatures the letter bare, should advise you TO IMPORT; when they must have been sensible, it was a measure which you had ever invariably pursued. And sure it was, that there were no symptoms amongst you, particularly at that Time, which could induce any one to apprehend a Change of Conduct.

But I conceive, gentlemen (and considering your known wisdom and sagacity—tho' you should not be able to conquer all your sister colonies, and be the great Head of a great Republic, for fifty years yet to come)—I conceive, I say, that your "tearing the letter, and scattering it to the winds" had a nobler design than many people may have imagined; and that it was intended to impart (by no very dim Apostopesis) some momentous truths to the inhabitants of this city; which, if their intellects had not been judicially blinded, they would have received with the highest gratitude: Conveying to us, by Mythology, a lively moral——To be ware of making public Declarations of our real intentions—and to follow your example, by replenishing our store-houses; and at the same time crowding our Newspapers with resolutions and re-resolutions against all those PARRICIDES and TRAITORS, who could think of owing their Greatness to their Country's Ruin;—by which means we might have filled the Ministry with Consternation, our Coffers with shining Gold, our Bellies with solid Pudding, and our Characters with Praise not empty.

But, alas, gentlemen, your example, without an hyperbole, is too high for Us to reach!—We must be content to contemplate it at a distance, with the most profound Astonishment. But be it known, however, unto all Men by these Presents, that Some among us, then of uncommon penetration and celebrated virtue, who are veterans in politicks, and consanguineous to you in inclination, have profited by your instructions. They have vapoured, scolded, and threatened, against IMPORTATION; they have publicly Resolved and Protested against it; and, at the same time, have patriotically transmitted their Orders for Goods, and obtained the honourable title of a GLORIOUS MINORITY.

Such nice and delicate movements in politics, the majority of us are unable to imitate. Forgive then those faux pas in this science into which our heavy souls may have led us. We deprecate the thunders hurled from the Vatican of your Infallibility: We provoke not the vengeful blow by obstinacy; but would return your soul-moving, conscience-spurring, and heart-purging Resolutions against us, with other most humble Resolutions in your favour; which we doubt not will promote your glory, as much as your vindictive ones tended to your disgrace.

RESOLVED, therefore,

Ist, That the mighty importing-non-importing folk of BOSTON, is a good folk, a great folk, a patriotic folk, and the wisest folk upon earth.

IIdly, That the good and wise folk of BOSTON shall ever hereafter be judged by their PROFESSIONS, and not by their ACTIONS.

IIIdly, That the good folk of BOSTON hath done more to the common cause of AMERICA, by their PROFESSIONS and RESOLUTIONS, than all the other Colonies by their Adherence to Theirs.

IVthly, That in testimony of our approbation, a Janus-faced STATUE shall be erected to their Mightinesses, near the Faction-Pole of this sinful city.

Vthly, That whoever at the view of a down-looking, solemn stalking, Spleen-devoured Personage; or at the deep-bowing, shuffle-drooping sound—as of a sackbut, psaltery, dulcimer, or Banjo—moveth not his head (for Kneeling is against our conscience) in submissive adoration, shall be sentenced to listen for an Hour, to the political ravings of our most illustrious patriots; and if he continue obstinate, shall be delivered over to be tormented, vexed, orationized, and worried to death, by their eternal vociferating jargon——"sans truth, sans sense, sans thought, sans every thing."—

VIthly. That any Resolves of the good people of BOSTON, concerning their own wisdom, constancy, and patriotism, shall ever hereafter, be deemed good, sufficient, and undeniable Evidence of the wisdom, constancy, and patriotism of the said good folk of BOSTON, and whoever scruples giving his Assent, shall, for his obstinacy, perverseness, and contumacy, be sent to ——, the Lord deliver him. Signed per order—

ICHABOD SNUFFLE, Secr'y.

ALL Persons indebted to CARNE & WILSON, are requested to discharge their respective Debts before the 15th Day of December next;—after that Day, they will have them to settle with a Gentleman of the Law, as no longer Indulgence can possibly be given, there being an absolute Necessity for having every Thing relative to that Concern closed.

 As this will be the LAST NOTICE given, it is inserted in the several Gazettes, that none may plead Ignorance.

Charles-Town, Oct. 11, 1770.

THE Subscriber intending to remove his Negroes to the Southward, will dispose of his valuable Plantation in St. Stephen's Parish, containing 1200 Acres, 200 of which is choice Rice Land, one Third cleared, and under substantial Fences; the Remainder abounds with large Cypress of the best Kind for Sawing; and the high Land is acknowledged to be as well timbered as any in the Parish.

On this Place there is as great a Convenience as any in the Province for erecting a Saw-Mill, having a constant Stream which leads through it in the dryest Times, and with a Dam of 150 Yards in Length, may be raised a Head of 15 Feet Water. Any Person inclinable to purchase, may apply to me in Charles-Town. BENJAMIN VILLEPONTOUX.

CHARLESTOWN, October [illegible]

[illegible] Sloop Freelove, [illegible] Master, from Rhode-Island.

LAY, laden with Apples, Potatoes, Beets, Cheese, and Rum; but being cleared at Newport in Rhode-Island, some Difficulties arose, whether her Cargo might be purchased here, 'till after there had been three Meetings of the General Committee (the last on Tuesday Evening) when it clearly appearing, that Vessels from Swanzey, tho' in the Massachusetts Government, could not obtain Clearances but from Newport, and that all her Cargo was bought at Swanzey, except nine Hogsheads of Rum, it was agreed, that the Swanzey Goods might be disposed of here, but the Rum, being distilled in Rhode-Island, is to be carried back in the Vessel. But no such Cargoes will in future, be purchased here, unless the Masters or Supercargoes, bring with them Certificates from the Boston Committee, that no Part thereof is the Produce of, or owned in the Colonies of Rhode-Island or New-York.

In Consequence of the Act of the General Assembly of this Province, passed the 23d of August, last Year, "for establishing a Ferry at the Two Sisters Bluff, on Savannah River, &c." we hear, that William Williamson, Esq; in whom the Ferry is vested, has already completed a Road, no less than 15 Miles in Length on this Side of that River, and built a House and Ferry-Boat for the Convenience of Travellers to and from Georgia; but that the salutary Intentions of the said Act are in a great Measure defeated, by some interested Persons on the other Side of the River, where the Want of a Road of only about Three Quarters of a Mile, interrupts the Communication.

Last Sunday His Majesty's Ship the Fowey, commanded by Mark Robinson, Esq; returned from the Northward, last from Virginia; in which came Passengers Collin Campbell, Esq; Mrs. Campbell, and Captain Thomas Musgrove, of His Majesty's LXIVth Regiment.

On Monday next the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, Oyer and Terminer, Assize and General Goal Delivery, is to be holden here.

Mr. Benjamin Mathewes has, since our last, delivered up all the Goods he engaged to put into the Hands of the Committee of Inspection, to be by them stored; and they have been accordingly stored.

This Morning died, aged 45 Years, Mrs. Elizabeth Lamboll, Wife of Thomas Lamboll, Esquire.

We are informed that the following notorious Offenders have lately broke out of Savannah Goal, and escaped into this Province, viz.

WINSLER DRIGGERS, a Prisoner under Sentence of Death; Age, 30 Years; Height, about six Feet; Complexion, black; Visage, pale, being much reduced by Sickness; Hair, black and long, generally cued; Dress, black Stockings and Breeches, check Shirt, and old Beaver Hat: For the apprehending of whom, a Reward of FIFTY POUNDS Sterling is offered.

ROBERT PRINE—Age, about 35 Years; Height, about six Feet; Complexion, black, and Countenance pale; Hair, black and loose; his Legs remarkably hairy; Dress, an Osnabrug Shirt and Trowsers.

PIERCE, alias PERSE LANE, a Lad—Age, 17 or 18 Years; Height, five Feet five Inches; Complexion, fair and pale; Hair, sandy coloured; Dress, Osnabrug Trowsers, Check Shirt, and coarse Felt Hat.

JOHN BOWERS, a well-set Man—Age, about 28 Years; Height, five Feet eight Inches; Complexion, fair; Hair, black; Dress, Osnabrug Shirt, Leather Breeches, with Shoes and Stockings.

FIVE POUNDS Sterling Reward is offered for apprehending each of the three last.

South-Carolina GAZETTE, No. 1827.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1770.

As we would not willingly " disappoint " our readers, we give them the following " speech in a Sunday-man, " which, according to Mr. ROBERT WELLS's correspondent, is " worth " the immense sum of " a GUINEA. " We can only say at present, that perhaps it is as artful as it is plausible; for it might take more than a week's consideration to determine, whether public utility requires, that the representatives of the people should be subject to the mercy of any future profligate administration, or any future judges, who (in the language of Lord N——) may be depended upon, as being more inclined to prostrate themselves before ministerial favour than the vulgar notions of popular esteem; though the people can always prevent a man, who refuses to pay his debts, from being long their representative. The person who prostitutes himself merely to earn " the huzza " of a crowd, " or to set the bells a ringing as he passes thro' a town, may be an object of pity: But he whose services are of such a nature, as to obtain hearty, free, though unprofitable compliments, from a grateful people, will be thought as happy, at least, as his Lordship, in appealing to " all-trying Time. " The man whose sole motives of action are to please, may become an " assassin of liberty: " But he, who trusts to futurity for a character, which he declares he " has long been struggling " to obtain, is perhaps not a jot better. From the composition of the human heart, self-love is so predominant, that a contempt for the esteem of the society we live in, is thought to arise only in the most abandoned dispositions and callous consciences: And it is generally affirmed, that present times are the proper st judges of present characters, because their most secret motives are better known and understood.

It is thought, it was unnecessary in his Lordship, to " defy " any one to point out, where the popularity of the times ever had " the smallest influence on his determinations: " He has even set that trifle at defiance; although this is the second speech on that subject, in which he has discovered his fears of losing it in the opinion of posterity. The reflections on " some of the courts " being infected with " popular prejudices, " we are apprehensive, will be considered as malignant, because they were not tinctured with different views, as was the court of K—g's-B—ch. The liberties of the people depend upon the [illegible] by having their prerogatives; and whatever individuals may gain by having them diminished, yet, whenever the courts are won over to the purposes of administration, such bills, however popular in their nature, or plausible in their pretences, may tend to destroy the freedom of government. We have been told, opportunities have been offered, and men of abilities have been called upon, to give their opinion in some constitutional points on which an honest heart would have expanded itself; but, alas! some have been as secret as the grave, because their ideas were safely buried in a royal bosom. And, in a desultory way, we will make it a moot point, notwithstanding any assertions to the contrary, whether popular applause, however innocent, has not been prosecuted and persecuted; and whether crimes of the blackest dye have not, thro' ministerial recommendation, in spite of " fiat justitia ruat cœlum, " been most glaringly shielded from the salutary operations of the laws.

We make no doubt, whether the following oration was delivered by one possessed of all the virtue of Phocion or Cato. The sentiments are worthy of both. Yet, as they tend to destroy the independence of parliaments, and to subject them to the controul of the courts below, over whom they have hitherto presided; as they likewise tend to hamper the minds of men, whose public virtue has got the better of their private œconomy (a virtue which frequently destroys every regard to self-interest) in our present opinion, we think the welfare of the state ought to have prevented their adoption. But, merely for the sake of drawing a conclusion, we will suppose such a speech uttered, by one who is accused of every vindictive design; by one, who feels no remorse, and who, from the earliest part of life, has been as distinguished for an unfeeling heart, and contempt for the voice of the people; and, in a posture which is due only to his God, has been accused of offering up libations to a vagrant, whom Smollet calls the Prince Pretender; if the Habeas Corpus has been repeatedly evaded; criminals suffered to escape without a trial; a foreigner of distinction driven out of the kingdom, because a French ambassador was uneasy at his designs of printing some papers of an extraordinary nature; if an attempt has been made to extend laws to countries not named within, and which the legislature of those times could not intend; if attornies have been tampered with, juries treated as insignificant, and some of their most essential right denied; if crimes have been defined different from what the laws have laid down; if records have been altered, and every species of wanton despotic power has been exerted, to enslave the happiest nation in Europe; and such a speech-maker should be at the bottom of all, should we ever cease to throw up our prayers to heaven to deliver us from such a monster?

It is not long, since a wretch was seen wading through every scene of law-iniquity, as the quickest road to dignity and preferment; but when he was about to receive, in a few hours, a Peerage from his Sovereign, he was snatched from hence, as it were, to answer for those crimes, which eminence of station, and a sycophant disposition, rendered impossible in this world. And, perhaps the present times can hold up to view, an artful, below, specious minion of favour, who, like Sylla, after rioting in oppression, and sapping all the liberties of his country, is permitted to escape the just resentment of an injured nation; and as a warning to mankind, that vices of great magnitude seldom pass unpunished even on this side the grave, he may be suffered to linger out a wretched life, and fall an unpitied sacrifice, a prey to vermin, or some scurvy disorder.

LORD M[illegible]'s SPEECH on the second reading of the BILL, for the further preventing delays of justice, by reason of the privilege of parliament, after the 24th of June, 1770.

MY LORDS,

WHEN I consider the importance of this bill to your Lordships, I am not surprized it has taken up so much of your consideration. It is a bill, indeed, of no common magnitude; it is no less than to take away from two-thirds of the legislative body of this great kingdom certain privileges and immunities, of which they have been long possessed. Perhaps there is no situation that the human mind can be placed in, that is so difficult and so trying, as where it is made a judge in its own cause. There is something implanted in the breast of man, so attached to self, so tenacious of privileges once obtained, that in such a situation, either to discuss with impartiality, or decide with justice, has ever been held as the summit of all human virtue. The bill now in question puts your Lordships in this very predicament, and I doubt not but the wisdom of your decision will convince the world, that where self-interest and justice are in opposite scales, the latter will ever preponderate with your Lordships.

Privileges have been granted to legislators in all ages, and in all countries. The practice is founded in wisdom; and, indeed, it is peculiarly essential to the constitution of this country, that the members of both houses should be free in their persons in cases of civil suits; for there may come a time when [illegible] and welfare of parliament. God forbid that I should advise any measure that would in future endanger the state; but the bill before your Lordships has, I am confident, no such tendency, for it expressly secures the persons of members of either house in all civil suits. This being the case, I confess when I see many noble Lords, for whose judgment I have a very great respect, standing up to oppose a bill which is calculated merely to facilitate the recovery of just and legal debts, I am astonished and amazed. They, I doubt not, oppose the bill upon public principles. I would not with to insinuate that private interest had the least weight in their determination.

This bill has been frequently proposed, and as frequently miscarried; but it was always lost in the lower house. Little can I think when it passed the House of Commons, that it could possibly have met with such opposition here. Shall it be said, that you, my Lords, the grand council of the nation, the highest judicial and legislative body of the realm, endeavour to evade by privilege those very laws which you enforce on your fellow-subjects? Forbid it justice!—I am sure, were the noble Lords as well acquainted as I am with but half the difficulties and delays that are every day occasioned in the courts of justice, under pretence of privilege, they would not, nay they could not, oppose this bill.

I have waited with patience to hear what arguments might be urged against the bill, but I have waited in vain; the truth is, there is no argument that can weigh against it. The justice and expediency of this bill is such, as renders it self evident. It is a proposition of that nature, that can neither be weakened by argument, nor entangled with sophistry. Much indeed has been said by some noble Lords on the wisdom of our ancestors, and how differently they thought from us. They not only decreed that privilege should prevent all civil suits from proceeding during the sitting of parliament, but likewise granted protection to the very servants of members. I shall say nothing on the wisdom of our ancestors, it might perhaps appear invidious, and is not necessary in the present case. I shall only say, that the noble Lords that flatter themselves with the weight of that reflection, should remember, that as circumstances alter, things themselves should alter. Formerly it was not so fashionable either for masters or servants to run in debt as it is at present; nor formerly were merchants and manufacturers members of parliament, as at present. The case now is very different, both merchants and manufacturers are with great propriety elected members of the lower house. Commerce having thus got into the legislative body of the kingdom, privilege must be done away. We all know that the very soul and essence of trade are regular payments, and sad experience teaches us, that there are men who will not make their regular payments without the compulsive power of the laws. The law then ought to be equally open to all; any exemption to particular men or particular ranks of men, is in a free and commercial country a solecism of the grossest nature. But I will not trouble your Lordships with arguments for that which is sufficiently evident without any. I shall only say a few words to some noble Lords, who foresee much inconvenience from the perſons of their ſervants being liable to be arreſted. One noble Lord obſerves, that the coachman of a Peer may be arreſted while he is driving his maſter to the houſe, and conſequently he will not be able to attend his duty in parliament. If this was actually to happen, there are ſo many methods by which the member might ſtill get to the houſe, I can hardly think the noble Lord to be ſerious in his objection. Another noble Peer ſaid, that by this bill one might loſe their moſt valuable and honeſt ſervants. This I hold to be a contradiction in terms; for he neither can be a valuable ſervant, nor an honeſt man, who gets into debt, which he neither is able nor willing to pay, till compelled by law. If my ſervant, by unforeſeen accidents, has got in debt, and I ſtill wiſh to retain him, I certainly would pay the debt. But upon no principle of liberal legiſlation whatever, can my ſervant have a title to let his creditors at defiance; while for forty ſhillings only, the honeſt tradeſman may be torn from his family, and locked up in gaol. It is monſtrous injuſtice! I flatter myſelf, however, the determination of this day will entirely put an end to all ſuch partial proceedings for the future, by paſſing into a law the bill now under your Lordſhips conſideration.

I now come to ſpeak upon what indeed I would have gladly avoided, had I not been particularly pointed at for the part I have taken in this bill. It has been ſaid by a noble Lord on my left hand, that I likewiſe am running the race of popularity: If the noble Lord means by popularity that applauſe beſtowed by after ages on good and virtuous actions, I have long been ſtruggling in that race, to what purpoſe all trying time alone can determine; but if the noble Lord means that muſhroom popularity that is raiſed without merit and loſt without a crime, he is much miſtaken in his opinion. I defy the noble Lord to point out a ſingle action of my life where the popularity of the times ever had the ſmalleſt influence on my determinations. I thank God I have a more permanent and ſteady rule for my conduct—the dictates of my own breaſt. Thoſe that have forſaken that pleaſing adviſer, and given up their mind to the ſlave of every popular impulſe, I ſincerely pity: I pity them ſtill more, if their vanity leads them to miſtake the ſhouts of a mob for the trumpet of fame. Experience might inform them that many who have been ſaluted with the huzzas of a crowd one day, have received their execrations the next; and many, who by the popularity of their times, have been held up as ſpotleſs patriots, have nevertheleſs, appeared upon the hiſtorian's page, when truth has triumphed over deluſion, the aſſaſſins of liberty. Why then can the noble Lord think I am ambitious of preſent popularity, that echo of folly, and ſhadow of renown, I am at a loſs to determine? Beſides, I do not know that the bill before your Lordſhips will be popular; it depends much upon the caprice of the day. It may not be popular to compel people to pay their debts: And, in that caſe, the preſent muſt be a very unpopular bill. It may not be popular neither to take away any of the privileges of parliament; for I very well remember, and many of your Lordſhips may remember, that not long ago the popular cry was for the extention of privilege; and ſo far did they carry it at that time, that it was ſaid that privilege protected members, even in criminal actions; nay, ſuch was the power of popular prejudices over weak minds, that the very deciſions of ſome of the courts were tinctured with that doctrine. It was undoubtedly, an abominable doctrine, I thought ſo then, and think ſo ſtill; but, nevertheleſs, it was a popular doctrine, and came immediately from thoſe who are called the Friends of Liberty, how deſervedly time will ſhow. True liberty, in my opinion, can only exiſt when juſtice is equally adminiſtered to all; to the King, and to the Beggar. Where is the juſtice then, or where is the law, that protects a member of parliament more than any other man from the puniſhment due to his crimes? The laws of this country allow of no place nor no employment, to be a ſanctuary for crimes; and where I have the honour to ſit as judge, neither royal favour nor popular applauſe, ſhall ever protect the guilty.

I have now only to beg pardon, for having employed ſo much of your Lordſhips time; and am ſorry a bill, fraught with ſo good conſequences, has not met with an abler advocate; but I doubt not your Lordſhips determination will convince the world, that a bill calculated to contribute ſo much to the equal diſtribution of juſtice, as the preſent, requires with your Lordſhips, but very little ſupport.
